We just moved into our new home and could not be more pleased to recommend Rudd Construction as a general contractor. The job was completed on-schedule and on-budget.

Ours is a reasonably large home with custom features and specialized requirements. Both my wife and I are extremely pleased with the quality of the workmanship. We were also pleased that Rudd's Project Manager and Superintendent were able to work so well with our architects, not only by implementing the architect's plans, but also by making valuable contributions to both the design of the home and to the construction techniques employed. Our interests, from costs to cleanliness, became Rudd's foremost concerns. From company partners, supervisors, and managers to laborers and office staff, Rudd helped us feel "at home" with the whole process by being able to put themselves in our shoes, as home-owners, and treating us accordingly. The care and craftsmanship of the carpenters are impeccable. The Project Manager and Field Supervisor's considerable experience and courteous communication enabled them to come up with immediate solutions to challenges that arose during construction.

In short, we couldn't be more pleased to have chosen Rudd to build our new home, and most certainly recommend the company without reservation.
